Pensacola Public Library, 239 N. Spring Street, downtown Pensacola

From Native Americans to England's Wedgwood Pottery and the defense of Florida, the clay found along Pensacola's Scenic Highway was a highly-prized commodity for thousands of years. Local archivist and historian Jacquelyn Wilson (Jacki) will talk about the varied uses of the clay and early industries that helped Pensacola thrive prior to the Civil War.

Jacki Wilson grew up in the Ensley area and has lived in Ferry Pass for more than 40 years. When she was a child, her family would go swimming along the Scenic Highway bluffs. Jacki would dig clay from the bluff to shape pots and sit them out to dry while she played in the water. She has a BA in Art and a Master's degree in History, both from the University of West Florida. She is the archivist/historian for the University of West Florida Historic Trust.
