The Pleistocene colonization of North America is one of the most contentious topics in North American archaeology. Dr. Miller provides an overview of recent research. The American Southeast is uniquely situated to contribute to five questions: 1) who were the first Native Americans, 2) how and 3) when did they get here, 4) how did they adapt to new environments and climate change, and 5) then what?