

TIDALLY UNITED 2018

“Protecting Heritage as Social Action”

roundtable discussion

February 14th 10- Noon

South Florida Museum
201 10th St W, Bradenton

We want to know what you think!

You are invited to attend a roundtable discussion on heritage and rising sea levels.

Co-hosted by the Florida Public Archaeology Network (FPAN) and the New College Public Archaeology Lab (NCPAL), the roundtable will start a discussion that will continue through a series of public events and engagements culminating with the Tidally United Summit in August 2018.

Supporting community interest and engaging diverse communities is the goal as we work toward solutions to rising sea levels across Florida. If you are interested in participating, or finding out more about the series of public events and the Tidally United Summit, join us.

Please RSVP to Rebecca O’Sullivan at rosulliv@usf.edu.
Go to www.fpan.us/HMSflorida for more information

6 foot sea level rise
projection

FLORIDA PUBLIC ARCHAEOLOGY
NETWORK

A PROGRAM OF THE UNIVERSITY OF WEST FLORIDA

FPAN.us

New College
Public
Archaeology
Laboratory